Coastal Carolina College, one of the fastest growing campuses within the University of South Carolina System, is a dynamic community of active students, highly qualified faculty, and dedicated professional staff — all working together to blend the traditional aspects of a liberal arts education with the progressive ideals that are so much a part of our rapidly changing society . . . Chancellor Ronald G. Eaglin

DR. RONALD G. EAGLIN
CHANCELLOR

"enriching experiences . . . helped to prepare you for the future."

Congratulations to the members of the class of 1991. You have worked diligently to reach your individual goals and to reach the one common goal all of you have shared — earning your degree. Your Coastal Carolina family shares the pride and joy you hold.

Each of you will begin a new and different adventure in life as you leave Coastal Carolina College, but you take with you many similar memories. You have made friendships that will last a lifetime, and you have had enriching experiences, both inside and outside the classroom, that have helped to prepare you for the future.

We are proud to have you join the ranks of more than 4,000 Coastal Carolina College alumni. May you have good fortune and continued success in the years ahead.

DR. ROBERT W. SQUATRIGLIA
ASSOCIATE CHANCELLOR

To All Students

Congratulations to yearbook editor Clay Fearrington, and his staff on the successful production of what promises to be the best Atheneum in the college's history. It is appropriate that we mark the beginning of the final decade of the 20th century with a record of an exciting college year — one which we will all recall with pride and pleasure as the years pass by.

Many exciting events have marked the past year, and the yearbook has been there to record each event as part of our pictorial history. I hope that you can relive the events of the year each time you turn the pages of the 1990-91 Atheneum; as a way of revisiting our past and a reminder to physically re-visit our campus in the future.

We have all been warmed by fires we did not build, and drunk from wells which we did not dig. Such is the history of any institution, and I hope that Coastal revisited in the years ahead through this Atheneum I will provide you warmth and satisfy your thirst for pleasant memories. So revisit Coastal through these pages when you cannot do it personally and physically. Boundless success and happiness is my wish for each of you.

Summer Break:

What's Your Fancy?

It is time to throw the books aside. School is out and the long awaited summer break is here — a time to surf, swim, golf, take a walk on the beach or just sway in your hammock with a cold glass of iced tea in your hand. Whatever your fancy is, summer is a great time to pursue it.

Only 25 more yards and I could have had a hole in one.

Tommy Tinkle is raising the ammonia level of Lake Norman.

John Campbell, Greg Addeo and Keith Glauber strut their stuff on the beach. Look out, girls, because here they come!

Marcia Harmyck chose Coastal Carolina College over the gorgeous campus of Arizona State University, we must be great!

Did you say his transcripts are from Hell?

Starting college can bring new questions and worries to ones mind. The best way to have these questions answered and worries resolved is to attend orientation.

Orientation lasts over a period of three days and is offered throughout the summer. For the convenience of out-of-state students, the dorms are made available, thus giving them a taste of what on-campus housing is like.

During the first two days, games are played to introduce new students to Coastal and their peers. The games are fun and also answer a lot of questions that students may have. There is a grand tour of the campus, giving new students a chance to learn their way around.

On the final day of orientation, one must consult with an appointed advisor to discuss his/her schedule. After classes are chosen, a student must go through a step-by-step process of registration. By the end of orientation, new students feel reassured, more confident and excited about starting their first semester at Coastal Carolina College.

"Hi Mom. Hi Dad. Look, I'm in college now."

"I would like to welcome you all to Coastal Carolina College, but before I go . . ." (Dr. Bob's famous words)

Ms. Coastal Carolina Pageant

She's The One

The Ms. Coastal Carolina College Pageant was held at the Wheelwright Auditorium on October 20, 1990. There were 15 beautiful, talented contestants, but only one would win. The contestants were Lisha Morlan, Kathy Thompson, Lisa Emanuele, Stephanie Werner, Arthelia Baker, Stormy Condrey, Kristie Michelle Brown, Jennifer Ann Lankford, Lisa Marcis, Shelby Jean Riddle, Dia Tyner, and Hilarie Dawn Banks. The Mistress of Ceremonies was Mrs. Louanne Moore Tippins, a former Ms. Coastal. M & M Jazz provided the entertainment. If you missed this performance, you missed one of the best of the year!

Anticipation! Contestants wait for the curtain to go up so they can "strut their stuff."

Dia Tyner, the new 1991 Coastal Carolina College. Dia is a sophomore majoring in Marketing. She was sponsored by the Archarios, Coastal's biannual literary/art magazine. Congratulations!

1991 Ms. Coastal Carolina, Dia Tyner

After all the trials, five finalists were chosen. The final questions were asked and the winners announced. They were: Dia Tyner, Ms. Coastal Carolina and the winner of the talent competition; Melissa Jane Richardson, 1st runner-up and Ms. Congeniality; and Kristie Michelle Brown, 2nd runner-up.

Above: Ben and Dargin are "Fuzzy and Wuzzy" as they make their fashion statement.

Right: Lisa Thompson starts a new trend on campus — "Bare your bra"

Make a Statement!
With Fashion, of course.

Trends come and go, and fashion is no exception. Finding out what's hot and what's not on campus is not an easy job. Just by looking around, one can see that there is no one set "style" that students adhere to. Comfort counts, and whether it be a tie-dyed tee, polo shirt, or plain blue jeans, everyone has their own unique way of dressing. Regardless of what your style may be, remember to "grin and wear it!"

Welcome Back
To the MAXX

The Welcome Back Dance took place on September 7, 1990. It was a true display of Coastal students' involvement. The Campus Union did an excellent job of providing refreshments and hors d'oeuvres. Students were able to meet new friends and catch up with their old friends.

I don't believe you just sang that song — I'm telling Mama!

So what are we doing after the dance, HONEY?

I may be smiling, but I'm really tied to the chair.

My God! She took it off!!!

Joey Froelich tries a new technique to help one study better.

Some students are avid golfers and enjoy practicing their game during the weekends.

Dancing in the park is becoming a popular thing.

Jefferson Poole enjoys taking the motor boat out on the weekend.

Keith, Gray, John, Paul, and Scott get ready for a night out on the town.

Weekends . . . so much to do, so little Time

Coastal students have many choices as to how they spend their weekends. Club activities, dorm parties, visiting the family, golfing, or going to the beach are all options. Well, of course, unless a test is scheduled for Monday morning! Then again — who cares about the test Monday morning! It's only Friday — Thank God for the weekends!

Nicole Ousley enjoys quiet time with her beau on the weekends.

Student Activities Day

Organizations at their best.

Who says there's nothing to do at Coastal? On Student Activities Day, representatives from the many organizations on campus were available in Spadoni Park to recruit new members. There's something for everyone!

Above: Sigridur, Tonla, Annette, and Thi, "Join our club and we can teach you to speak in 8 different languages."

Toyota, Cookie, Kim, Jeff, John: "If you can do this, you can join Campus Union."

Janet Massingill: Strike a pose, Vogue . . .

"OK, Julie, I'll join the club."

Jamie Orr pulls a power move straight out of Surfer Magazine.

Waves

A power to be tamed

Undoubtedly, all surfers are influenced by the power of the ocean, a power that gives them something to look forward to and shapes their lives. They watch weather patterns and changes in the wind and swell direction, while keeping in mind the conditions necessary for optimum waves. Nature produces that long-awaited swell and asks for nothing but respect — respect for the weather, respect for the waves, and, most of all, respect for fellow surfers.

Meira Dozier shows that the sun also shines on short surfers.

Dan Pettit is learning how to fly surfer style.

Joel Watson listens to John Mills explain the difference between the waves at 44th Avenue North and Springmaid Pier.

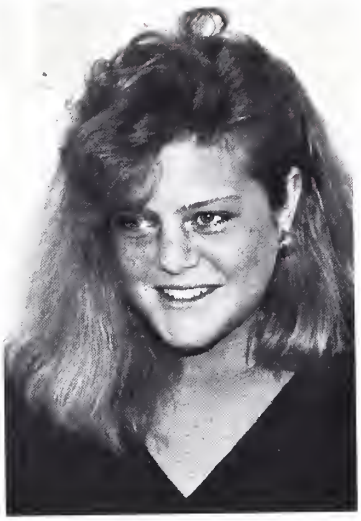
Hurricane Lily

On October 12, 1990, Hurricane Lily threatened the South Carolina Coast. With Hurricane Hugo still vividly clear in the minds of locals, emotions were high. The people on our campus tell us how they felt on that day.

Sherry Rauckhorst: "I'm not really worried; at least it's not as strong as Hugo."



Barbara Ahrens: "It would be unfortunate if it hit, but I'd enjoy the vacation."

Mark Sikes and Nadine Butler: "We'll hope for the best, but prepare for the worst."

Chris Laws: "I don't think it will hit us directly, but we will feel the effects of it."

Trish Grant: "No matter how hard it hits us, it couldn't phase Jack Riley's government exam."

Brenda Major: "I don't think it will hit here."

Gail O'Brien: We fought for equal rights, so we should get equal treatment.

Kerry Johnston: If they tried to draft me, I would leave the country.

Carlos Salazr: It would be a good thing.

Randy Sasebe: It would be a good idea; they ought to be drafted but not involved in combat.

Steve Fitzgibbons: They are capable of doing the job.

Andrew Morris: It's logical and worthwhile.

Jason Lehto: I don't care.

Lucy Ryals: It's fine if they draft men, so why not women?

Karen Shealy: We could defend the country.

Chris Thomas: I'd feel pretty bad about it because I wouldn't want to be drafted.

Persian Gulf, Draft Women?

The conflict in the Persian Gulf brought the thought of the draft into the minds of many college students. We asked students how they would feel if women were drafted.

(Brian, Pete, and Steve) "All work and no play . . ."

Our Home At School

home away from home

Coastal dorms are a home away from home, although the bedrooms are smaller than those at home and there's no more of mom's home cooking. Responsibility takes on a new meaning, with the grocery shopping, laundry, balancing the budget, and cleaning after oneself and possibly a roommate. Loud music and late parties sometimes hinder the studying. But we manage to make it through the semester, and we learn to appreciate what Mom and Dad went through all those years. Sometimes we miss home and those days without a care.

We don't have to study; we're students.

Cutting classes is always fun.

(Scott Rosencrans) "And I thought college life was going to be tough."

Christmas Dance 1990

Campus Union sponsored the annual Christmas dance for 1990 on December 7 at the Sea Mist Resort. At least 500 students attended. The entertainment was provided by Game, a Top 40's band. Coastal students danced the night away with friends, tying to forget about their upcoming exams. This event was truly a success; everyone seemed to have a really good time.

True Christmas spirit: Courtney Carlson and friends show off their threads for the holidays.

Coastal students try to do the "Bart Man" to Jingle Bells but it just doesn't work.

Cyndee Lewis got so excited on the dance floor that her dress came off, and Julie came to the rescue.

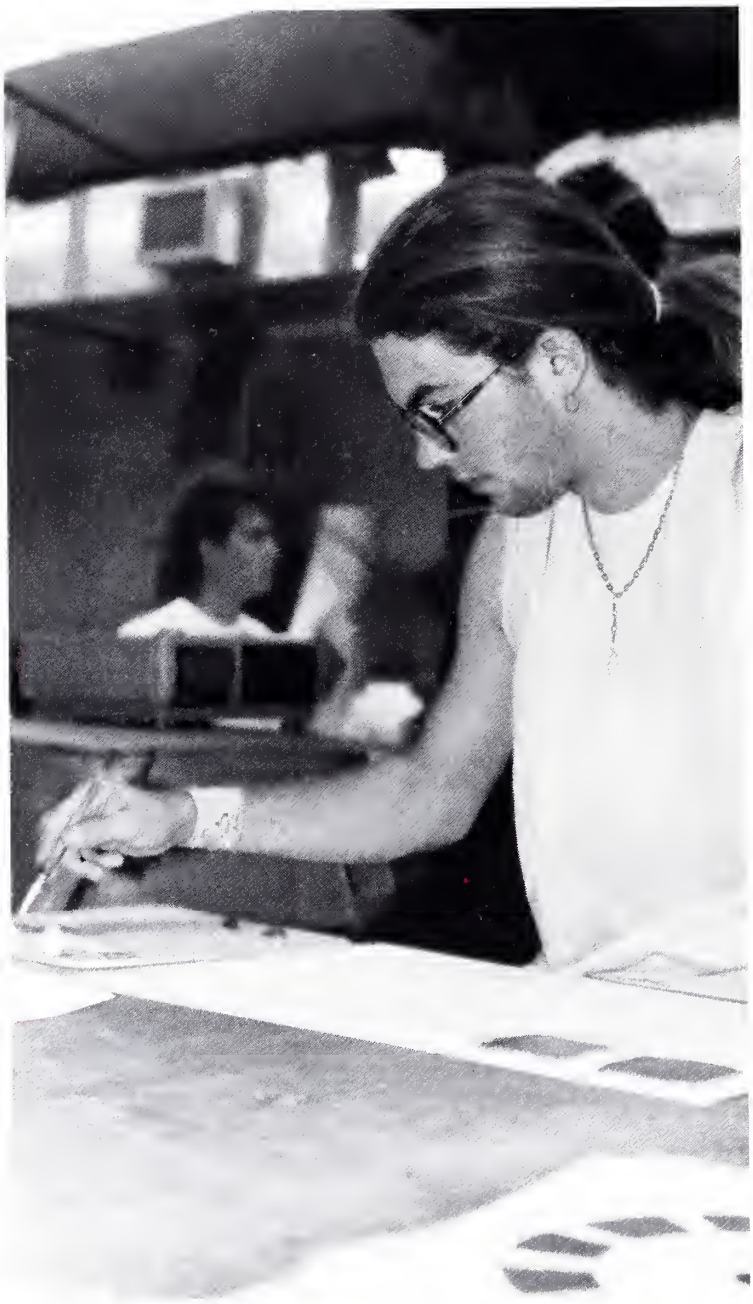
Brian Bristol and Jennifer Barnwell; Wait a minute, Honey. Let this guy take our Christmas portrait.

Julie and friends take a minute to smile for the camera while socializing at the party.

LOOK AROUND!

There Is Talent To Be Found

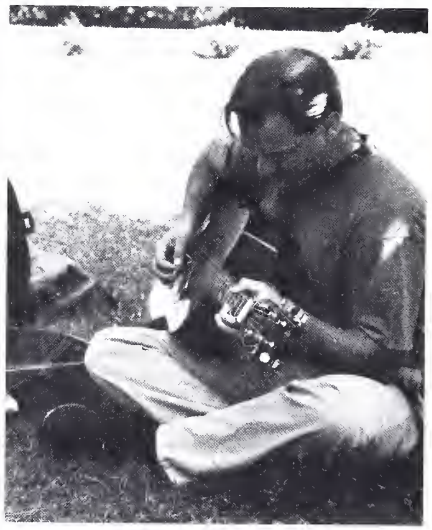
Talent at Coastal is not hard to find. Take a stroll around campus and you might see a student playing a guitar under the shade of a nearby tree . . . or walk through the Art center and you might see future artists busy at their easels, painting a variety of pictures. Sit on a bench near an open window of the Continuing Education Center and you might hear a choir singing a familiar tune. Wherever you might be, just look around; a talented person is bound to be found!



A touch of paint here, a touch of paint there, and before he knows it, a picture forms before Stuart Williams' eyes.

Finding enjoyment in a new form of "juggling," Carlos Rameriz practices this sport for many hours a week.

"The only thing left to do is wait" say these two students who made this small bonfire as a ceramics project. Believe it or not, two feet under that fire, clay pots lay baking away.



Between classes, Chris Pierce finds strumming a guitar in the shade a form of relaxation.

Practice makes perfect, and it shows when Mellisa Richardson performs a song she co-wrote, for an audience.

Faculty
Follies

We the students are proud of our caring and friendly faculty and staff here at Coastal Carolina. They're never too busy to take the time to help us in our academic endeavor, to lend a sympathetic ear, or just to stop by for a friendly chat. We salute our faculty and staff as being the best in the U.S.C. system. Keep up the good job.

Young And Strong

Coastal's women's volleyball team finished third in regular season play, their record was 11-18. The team consists of six freshwomen and five sophomores. The team is very "young" and had lots of potential. The team is sure to strengthen as the years proceed.

ou can't catch me!

INTRAMURALS

Come on, girls, work those thighs.

Touch and go: Intramural football players have to watch their hands when they go for the other team's flags.

So this is a bowling ball. Now what do we do with it?

Don't anyone move! I've lost a contact lens.

Looks like it's a powerful hit, but how powerful is the question.

Can't you get those legs any higher, girls?

Whether they are on the field or in the gym, Intramural participants do not always have winning on their minds. The spirit of the game is what they find most important. It could be football, baseball, bowling or even aerobics, but whatever the sport it is, the competing is for fun.

It's my ball and you can't have it!

There's nothing like a good stretch.

BASEBALL

He's . . . SAFE!

It's a . . .

Baseball . . .

No Problem

In the 1989 season Coastal Carolina's baseball team was 40-19 for their regular season. Then they went on to the Big South Tournament in which they placed second. Overall, the baseball team represented Coastal Carolina very well in competition.

To be out or to be safe, that is the question.

Footloose and fancy free.

No — Cross country is not a vari iation of skiing . . . it's a sport the requires endurance, speed, hard work and, most importantly, dedi cation. Coastal's Cross Countr teams, men and women, have all o the above ingredients and more t classify them not only as athletes but . . . CHAMPIONS.

The women's team was the Bi South Conference Champions i 1988 and 1989. This past year the were runners-up (but by only a mer seven points). Coach Alan Conn was still proud of them.

The men's team may not have won the Big South Conference meet this past year either, but the team was young and did show substantial improvement as the season progressed. Their Head Coach is Jim Koster and the Assistant Coach is Lou Nordeen.

Coastal's Cross Country program is still very young and has already covered many steps . . . and the race isn't over yet!!!

Don't look so serious, girls!

Coastal girl at the head of the pack.

Let's Go

Coastal!!!

It can be said that the Chanticleers truly have the best backing them this year in the form of the Coastal Carolina Varsity Cheerleaders. Kimberly Grant, a former Winthrop College cheerleader, began her second year as the cheerleaders' coach. She recruited nine talented new members for the 1990-91 squad, as well as retaining five veterans from last year.

Returning from last year are: captain Ken McSorley, an education major from New York; captain Lisa Emanuele, an accomplished choreographer/dancer from Maryland and also a staff member for the Eastern Cheerleader's Association; James Ashby, a biology major and choreographer from Texas, Bradley Todd, a Conway High School graduate in his senior year at Coastal; and Marc Gura, in his third year as Coastal's mascot.

New members of the squad are: Stacey Stolmaker from New York and a staff member for the Universal Cheerleader's Association; John Mann from New York; Wendy Hall, a former national level gymnast and All-American cheerleader for Conway High School; Shelby Riddle, a former high school cheerleader from Greenwood, South Carolina; Ray Fuller from Kansas, a member of Coastal's soccer team; Greg Addeo, a talented tumbler from New York; Anthony LaRocca, a member of Sigma Phi Epsilon, also from New York; Jennifer Lankford from Texas, also a former cheerleader for Coastal Academy and former Teenage Miss Irmo; Stephanie Lawrence, a transfer student from the University of Texas at Austin where she was a member of the Longhorn's Varsity Women's Gymnastics Team, an All-American cheerleader, and a staff member for the International Cheerleading Foundation; Christine White from Virginia and former captain of her high school cheerleading squad; and Patrick Huber, a government major from Pennsylvania.

The cheerleaders began the year as gifted, hardworking individuals and ended their season as a close-knit, talented team. This did not come easy, for they spent an average of thirteen hours per week perfecting their sport (running, lifting weights, organized practice, swimming, aerobics, and partner stunt practice). They hope that the reward for all of their hard work will be a qualifying spot at UCA's National Cheerleading Championships in San Antonio, Texas. We wish them all the best in their efforts, but in the meanwhile, we can enjoy their enthusiastic performances as they cheer the Chanticleers to victory.

Partner stunts are just one of the many areas in which the cheerleaders must excel.

"Who are we yelling for? USCC!"

Red! Black! Red! Black! Lisa Emanuele and Greg Addeo lead the crowd during a time out.

The cheerleaders prepare for a routine at the 25,000 person Charlotte coliseum.

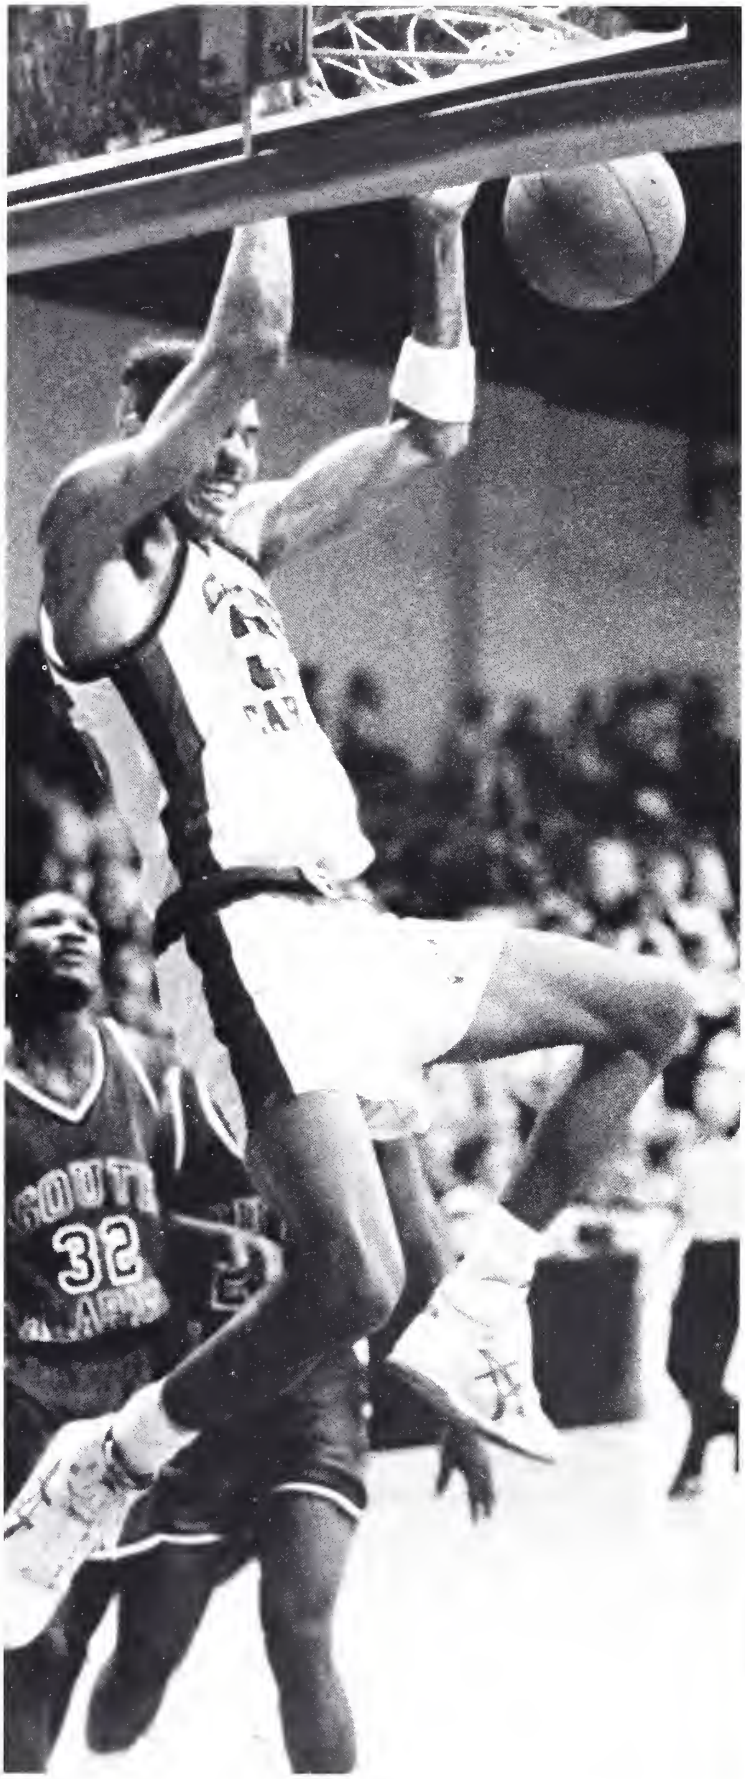
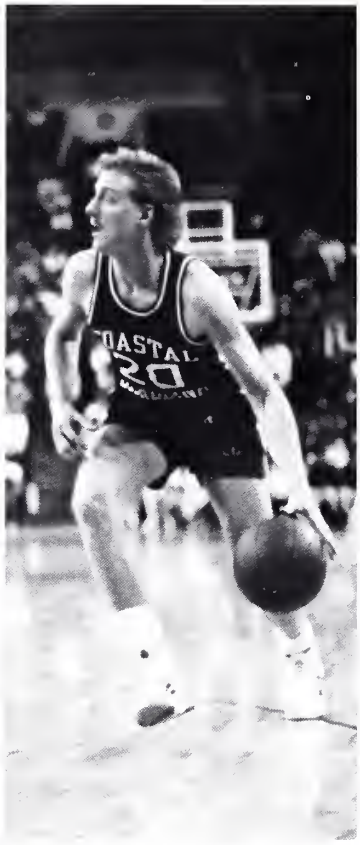
"The King" does it again!





Big South

Here we come!

Last year the Chanticleers brought home the Big South Championship. This year they will try to do the same, but it will be tougher than last year, due to the heavier schedule. The Chanticleers will play 27 games this year, 10 at home in the "Chicken Coop" and the other 17 all over the East Coast. Coach Russ Bergman is trying to get the Chanticleer schedule up-graded, so they must play more away games because they can't get the big schools to come to Coastal.

"Hollywood" makes a getaw with the ball.

100 years ago, this area didn't even have a name. Just getting to the coast was practically impossible. But thanks to some pioneering businessmen, this beautiful beach has become one of the fastest growing resort locations in the nation. With an entrepreneurial spirit, our pioneers built the first bridge, ran the first railroad and piloted their own steamboats down the Waccamaw River. Later they diversified into the farming business growing Irish potatoes by the tons.

By 1912, the men who made up the Myrtle Beach Farms Company had incorporated and even more Myrtle Beach landmarks began to appear on the map. The Pavilion, the Seaside Inn, the Chapin Company General Store—all firsts! Soon after, golf courses appeared where cattle once grazed. Office parks, medical centers, schools, amusements, banks and a shopping mall soon followed. Today, Myrtle Beach Farms Company is one of the oldest, most highly respected real estate development firms in the southeast.

Their rich history of responsible leadership and community spirit continues to shape the character of Myrtle Beach, the Grand Strand and Horry County. Myrtle Beach Farms Company. They put Myrtle Beach on the map, and maintain a heritage as the corporate leader for the quality growth of this superlative resort community.
